BUFFALO TRACE DISTILLERY LIGHTS UP THE HOLIDAYS Special Candlelight Tour at 5:30 p.m. on Nov. 30 Kicks off the Season

FRANKFORT, FRANKLIN COUNTY, KY (Nov. 28, 2017) – Do you hear those sleigh bells jingling? It’s time to put on the mittens and prepare your holiday wishes, for Jolly Old St. Nick will be making his appearance soon at Buffalo Trace Distillery! The holidays come to Buffalo Trace Distillery on Thursday evening, Nov. 30, for the nineteenth annual “Lighting of the Trace.”

This jolly evening will be complete with guaranteed snow, refreshments, carols, Christmas stories read by Santa’s elves, and of course a visit from “the jolly old man” himself.

Beginning at 5:30 p.m., a special candlelight tour of the Distillery will start, featuring carolers from the choir at Kentucky State University along the tour route.

Then, at 6:30 p.m. Frankfort Mayor, Bill May, will press the “magic button” that will light up more than 140,000 lights across the Distillery, including a couple of new light displays.

Directly following the Lighting ceremony there will be pictures with Santa Claus in the Clubhouse as the KSU choir sings more holiday carols. Cookies will also be served along with hot chocolate to keep you warm.

The Buffalo Trace Gift Shop will be open until 7:30 p.m. that evening for all your holiday shopping needs. Plenty of great holiday gift ideas are in stock, including holiday gift baskets, food products, specialty clothing and much more!

Buffalo Trace Distillery is located at 113 Great Buffalo Trace, in Frankfort, Ky. For this event, guests are asked to enter at the traffic light on Wilkinson and Fair Oaks Lane and follow signs to the parking lot, as the main entrance will be closed. Visitors are also invited to drive through the Distillery grounds nightly from dusk to 11 p.m. Dec. 1 through Jan. 2.
